

On October 6, 2016 I gave a lecture at the University of Michigan on “Jesus, the Law, and the New Covenant. This was keynote address for the Mendenhall Symposium, in honor of the eminent scholar of the Hebrew Bible, George Mendenhall. The symposium focused on issues on the law and covenant in the the Ancient Near East, the Hebrew Bible, and second-temple Judaism, with prominent scholars in these fields presenting papers on key aspects of the subject.

Here is the video of my talk.

Please adjust gear icon for high-definition.

[What Can We Do About Presuppositions?
Gospel Evidence that Jesus Existed](#)